Within the framework of the Regional Policy Dialog (RPD), twenty-one organizations in the Americas have come together to increase the technical understanding of how to best adapt to climate change, establishing a platform to share water-based adaptation experiences. After presenting nine public policy recommendations on water and climate change adaptation at the COP-16 of the UNFCCC, this solutions document together with the session at the World Water Forum presents the continuation of this effort and will provide an input to the Forum and the Conference on Sustainable Development Rio+20.
